Get-Well Bingo

Sit near the sick kid. When one of these kind things actually happens, check the square. Five in a row wins a toy prize of your choosing. Two boards per page: cut apart or play together.

Board A

B	I	N	G	O
Somebody whispered "feel better" near a resting patient	A drink was offered without being asked for	Blanket made its way to the sick bed	Fifteen quiet minutes played nearby	Small snack served like fancy restaurant food
A story was read aloud, voices and all	Cold cloth or ice pack for a hot forehead	FREE (a nurse with ice chips walks past — imaginary ok)	Couch pillow fort reached structural completion	A stuffed animal was introduced by name to the patient
Medicine taken without the face of doom	Hands washed before helping or delivering	A joke was told softly enough not to shake the bed	Everyone agreed on one show, no fussing	Get-well picture drawn and put on display
Sips happened at least three times in one hour	Sick kid stayed horizontal for a whole cartoon	Quiet music was chosen with no arguing	The patient smiled or laughed a little	Bedtime arrived early without protest
A grown-up got to sit down for a bit	Empty cups were carried to the sink	Tissues arrived before they were needed	Forehead was checked gently and reported kindly	Somebody whispered "I love you" to the sick kid today

Board B

B	I	N	G	O
Two people raised their whisper-voices	Nap happened: real, attempted, or horizontal staring	Grown-up drank something for their own sake	Someone said "okay" instead of arguing	The sick kid ate or drank more than last hour
"Can I bring you anything?" asked without being asked	A dog or a stern teddy stood guard beside the bed	FREE (whole house agrees: today counts double)	Nobody turned the TV to full volume	PJs survived a whole day without complaint
Puzzle or coloring happened silently nearby	Someone said "thank you" twice today	A book was flipped through, narrator optional	Couch nap taken under a blanket, show on low	Snack was eaten sitting down, crumbs contained
Sticker or band-aid was administered ceremoniously	A corner of the house became "the hospital"	Water bottle was found, refilled, and returned	A phone call or message wishing well was placed	Nobody asked "is it dinner yet" before 4pm
Softest blanket in the house was located and deployed	Chicken nuggets or toast were considered medicine	The sick kid asked for something and said please	Laundry at least got closed, hugged, quietly	Everyone survived to tell the tale at bedtime

Free Sick-Day Kit — education and organizing only. Not medical advice.